

Attention College Students Displaced by the Katrina- Related Environmental Disaster

You can see a list of about 200 colleges and universities which have made offers for students at this website - www.scup.org/knowledge/katrina/offers.html. In many cases, some of the details of the offers are included on that page; if not, there are links to where they are detailed. Institutions are being quite generous with expedited admissions, many offers of free tuition and/or room and board, and so forth. However, you need to act quickly as semesters are moving forward!

The Society for College and University Planning (SCUP) created an email list for college and university administrators and faculty to share knowledge about Hurricane Katrina's effects; and also as a place where they can share offers of assistance of various kinds. The list has resulted in a compilation of useful information, including the info on that link above.

The first offers of assistance are, naturally, from colleges and universities who wish to assist displaced students whose institutions are damaged by Katrina. Estimates of the number of such students range from 60,000 to 110,000.

Our generic page of overall higher education Katrina links is - www.scup.org/knowledge/katrina/. Please share and publish this information anywhere you wish.
